Prior Notice – Application of Imported Fresh Food of Plant Origin (FFPO)

Report Categories:

Report Highlights:

Indonesian Ministry of Agriculture regulation No. 88/2011 requires that a prior notice form for the exportation of fresh food of plant origin (FFPO) to Indonesia should be filled out by producers and/or exporters in the country of origin effective immediately.

General Information:

Ministry of Agriculture Regulation 88/2011, which covers food safety controls over internationally trade FFPO, requires prior notice information as one of document for imported FFPO. Regulation 88/2011 supersedes Regulation 27/2009. Previously under Regulation No. 27/2009, the prior notice requirement was a form that attested to the variety of FFPO. This form was completed and signed by the local Indonesian importer.

However, FAS Jakarta just recently learned that under Regulation No. 88/2011, the prior notice form requires the producer or exporter in the country of origin to fill out the form. Ministry of Agriculture officials in the Quarantine Agency stated that this form is required effective March 19, 2012. It should be noted that there remains confusion among importers about whether this form is required from countries that have obtained official Country Recognition by the Indonesian Quarantine Agency for Decree 27/Regulation 88.

The Indonesian Government have not notified Regulation 88 to the WTO, nor have they conducted any formal socialization or formal discussions with their trading partners on this or related regulations issues in recent months. An unofficial English translation of Regulation 88 may be obtained on the FAS Jakarta website: <http://www.usdaindonesia.org/>. The translation includes a list of products affected.

Definition:

FFPO means Fresh Food of Plant Origin in the form of product produced in post-harvest processing for consumption or industrial raw material and/or product which experiences minimal processing

FFPO Safety means condition and attempt required to prevent FFPO from potential chemical contaminant, biological contaminant, and/or containing prohibited chemical substances that may disturb, damage, and is hazardous to human health
